The debt-struck country introduced painful economic measures such as tax hikes, and utility rate increases, part of the reforms prescribed by the International Monetary Fund (IMF), a must for the release of the bailout package.

The doctors' trade union said it launched a day of strikes on Monday, covering four of the nine provinces of the island nation. "The doctors will be on teacher's trade union spokesperson, Shyaman Banneheka, said industrial action had begun on March 9 with the workers staying away from work.

"We will join other trade unions for collective action from Wednesday (March 15) until the government withdraws the new tax policy," Banneheka said. "We are opposed to it and want the government to withdraw it" Shamal Sumanaratne of the port workers' trade union said, adding that water sector trade unions have also joined in with its spokesman Engineer Upali Ratnayake saying that the workers would only do emergency work from Monday.

"We will be doing a half-day strike on March 14 and join other trade unions on March 15 for the bigger strike," the spokesperson said. The trade unions oppose the tax reforms imposed on the dictates of the IMF. The cash-strapped country awaits the global lender's for-worst-ever economic crisis. Wickremesinghe told Parliament recently that all of IMF's pre-conditions for the bailout had been fulfilled and the reforms prescribed were a must for implementation.

His government had raised personal taxes and utility bills and cut subsidies as part of the reforms required. The IMF bailout process made slow progress due to the need to restructure Sri Lanka's nearly 50 billion dollar external debt.
